

Hello All,

One last ND News email for the year. After the last email, school work got pretty heavy with the end of the school year and finals approaching. As a result, I actually did very little other than write papers and study.

I did finish all of the papers that I talked about in the last email. It actually wound up being about sixty pages worth in the month of April. I've also finished all of my exams now, which I guess makes me a college sophomore now. Aside from school work, the Chorale recorded a CD the last weekend of April, which should be available sometime in the fall.

As I write this email, I'm still on campus with the Chorale. We perform at the Baccalaureate Mass on Saturday in addition to a small concert with the voice majors on Friday night. Campus is eerily empty and quiet this week with only a fraction of the student body here. It's also kind of boring with no classes and little to do other than choir rehearsal, which is only two hours per day. After our performances this weekend, we leave for our two week trip to Hawaii and New Zealand. I will finally get back to Dubuque on June 1st or 2nd. I'm going to post my pictures from New Zealand and Hawaii on www.TheJes.net shortly after that.

Well, that's the last of the news for this year. If anyone wants to get in touch, I should be able to answer emails pretty quickly this week.

In Notre Dame,

Jesse
